Master of Arts in International Community Development - Online

Program Description

The Master of Arts in International Community Development (MICD) is an online program - which will cater to working adults - whether young or old, who are seeking to influence the world in the areas of ministry, business and social services. The program will introduce and assess students in the following curricular categories: (1) core business business concepts, (2) ministry aptitude (3) leadership and organizational development, (4) administration of human services programming, and (5) professional networking skills. Aligned to the university's missional focus, the MICD will expose students to the critical skills, necessary for leading in the marketplace. The program supports the mission of Southeastern University by equipping future leaders to serve the world through Spirit-empowered life, learning, and leadership.
